

Changes in AWCI Tasmania

AWCI Tasmania celebrated its annual dinner and general meeting in February. The small town of Bridport on the edge of Bass Strait in northern Tasmania saw members arrive for this celebratory weekend.

A casual meal on Friday night allowed people gravitate to the Bridport pub for a glass of wine and a meal. Old friendships were renewed and new ones started. started as they mean to continue.

Saturday morning heralded the annual meeting, with some changes voted in. Incoming President Mark Watson (Impact Plaster) and his team Dave Thomas (Boral – Vice President), John Cowley (Cowley’s Interior Supplies – Treasurer) and Mick Langford (Secretary). The members thanked immediate past president Clinton Steele (Brock Plaster) for his commitment and contribution over many years. Life Member and former Secretary Brian Huxley was thanked for his important input over the past two decades and for delivering a vibrant association to the new team.

Some golf was played in the afternoon while others slipped away to the nearby Tamar Valley wineries for inspection tours. The group reconvened for a delightful dinner and reminisces of the day, golf scores, fish caught and a history of the industry in Tasmania.
